

Our Dance with Destiny

*By Gerald
Blackburn
For my Katherine*

Destiny has written our song and story long ago
But the fates will show us the paths we might choose for tomorrow
Our souls were cast in a furnace of love
But our hearts were forged on the anvil of life.
In this Universe without time or space we can only be who we are
And live our eternity in this universe of stars.
If time does not exist how can I account for our moments of bliss?
I move through this time and space toward you
In your sacred place now.
My thoughts and dreams of you and us constantly consume me in this life I dream.
I can feel our love with your hand in mine but it leaves me craving for so much more.
There is a moment we are destined to reach when you will finally come to be by my side once again
You will reach out and take my hand and we will leave together for that promised land.
This is my special dream that I dare not share because it seems to absurd for those whom I care.

Continue...

Our Dance with Destiny

Yet I know our connection shall prevail and we will be ever closer when we are both beyond this veil.

This love I have for you continues to grow and expand in my heart every day and I am sure it will lead me to you as I pray.

With our love We have created something so special in so many ways our being together created a quilt of souls and a comfort in a life that we have woven into a tapestry of our love.

Our tapestry is like the stars in the night sky, and tells our story and shares the connections we have between these two worlds

It is always flowing to and from that infinite source, a universe of energy and love.

Please take my hand and join me in our dance with destiny

Listen to the music of this universe as our hearts hear the silence too, feel the vibration and energy of our lives that flows with the rhythm of life between you and me.

We create our own love harmony here in our hearts and souls

And join the symphony of all of those in our universal family.

Feb 8, 1964