

Sailing the Sea of Grief

By Gerald Blackburn

For my Katherine

I am sailing a sea of grief to my soulmate.

*The gap of grief that was left when you departed,
leaves me stranded on this shore of an ocean of tears.*

*You left with half of my heart and soul,
but I still feel our love.*

It's just beyond the invisible horizon that is here right next to us.

My time now is filled with our memories and unfinished destiny,

But the gifts you left me are my treasures for our tomorrow.

My fear of death you took with you and no longer abides in me, and the love we share now continues to grow.

I can feel your half of our heart and soul in me

*And slowly the grief gap starts to close.
Its pulling us together toward a new journey. That begins Here and Now, My love we are a team for eternity. It is with this love*

I can now sail the sea of grief with faith and trust

you are right here waiting for me.
